

International Society of EndoVascular Specialists

Member News

April 2018

NEW ALLIANCE WITH THE CVC

The Society is pleased to announce a new partnership with the CVC Arterial and Venous Endovascular Course, which will now serve as the flagship US vascular conference for the ISEVS. President Zvonko Krajcer, MD, (left below) will work along side Dr. Jaafer Golzar (right), CVC Founder and Chairman, as Co-Chairman to educate physicians and advance endovascular therapies. The CVC has grown exponentially in the past few years, delivering dynamic content with the help of a world-class faculty and cutting-edge technology.

“I am truly excited to have the opportunity to play a pivotal role and help shape the future of this important vascular conference. I plan to expand the current simultaneous arterial and venous sessions that Dr. Golzar established, a unique concept that has helped the CVC become an internationally recognized vascular symposium. My vision is to introduce large bore cardiovascular innovations, expand the Fellows Program, and add more hands-on workshops in 2018,” said Dr. Krajcer.

ISEVS members are encouraged to attend the CVC in Chicago (July 11–13), where they can enjoy the Society’s special session on July 12th (Debate on the Latest Advances in Treatment of Thoracic Aortic Aneurysms and Aortic Dissections). To welcome Society members to the meeting a special $100 discount on the registration fee is being offered. Please see the meeting website (cvcpvd.com) for details.

ISEVS FOUNDING FATHER IS HONORED AT SYDNEY MEETING

Professor James May, MD, MS, FRACS, FACS (right), one of the vascular surgeons who founded the Society in 1992, received the ISEVS Distinguished Service Award at the VERVE Symposium in Sydney, Australia, on December 8, 2017. Society Ambassador Jacques Busquet (left) was on hand to present the award. The Society recognizes Dr. May’s commitment and innumerable diverse contributions to vascular and endovascular surgery. His energy is boundless, his kindness heartwarming, and his enthusiasm unsurpassed, which has made him a truly inspiring teacher, mentor, clinician, and researcher. We thank Dr. May for his service to our organization and the betterment of healthcare worldwide.

Zvonimir Krajcer, MD, President

Alan Lumsden, MD, President-Elect