Enhancing Physician Education Programs

Lafayette, LA, September 30, 2015– New Cardiovascular Horizons Foundation (NCVH) and International Society of Endovascular Specialists (ISES) announce their plans for an educational alliance.

Craig M. Walker, MD, Chairman of NCVH said, “Our team looks forward to the new collaboration with this well-respected and pioneering organization to enhance our current robust educational programs for physicians.”

Edward B. Diethrich, MD, Chairman of International Society of Endovascular Specialists responds to the collaboration with, “We welcome this opportunity to share more than 25 years of experience in the endovascular field with our colleagues at NCVH, with the goal to provide the best possible training for physicians.”

Combined, the two organizations have 50+ years of physician leadership in the fields of cardiovascular, endovascular, and peripheral circulatory disease diagnosis and therapy. It is vital all physicians who care for patients with vascular disease have access to comprehensive training and education to ensure appropriate treatment of their patients.

Beginning in late 2015 and accelerating into 2016, the leadership of NCVH and ISES will be providing regional, national and international live programs for physician education tailored for the specific circulatory disease diagnosis and treatment.

They have recognized the current and future needs for continuous physician education in this rapidly changing field of medicine. As the FDA approves new pharmaceutical and medical device therapies, they will continue to educate on various treatment modalities.

Enhanced on-line programs will also be available for physicians and the noted Journal of Endovascular Therapy will expand the publication to the new and most updated clinical trial information, as it becomes available.
